

Use and care:

All new reusable nappies should be washed before use to increase their absorbency. A nappy will reach its maximum absorbency after about few washes, but it is worth washing 2-3 times as a minimum before first use. You do not need to allow the nappy to dry between washes.

1. Dispose of any solids down the toilet. If your nappies have Velcro/Aplix, be sure to use the fold over tabs. This will reduce wear to your nappies
2. If the nappy has an insert remove this and put it in the nappy bucket.
3. Nappies do not need to be soaked
4. On washing day pop your nappies into the washing machine and put them through a cold rinse cycle
5. Wash at 60° using washing powder. You will only need a very small amount of washing powder (a third of the recommended amount). Using too much detergent will simply make your nappies stiff and the build up of residues may lead to nappy rash
6. Do not bleach nappies or use fabric softeners. Use detergent that has less than 5% of soap.
7. Dry nappies straight away, by either dryer (low-medium heat) or washing line.
